Come, Follow Me: Learning Resources for Youth

Lessons in this manual are organized into units that address doctrinal fundamentals of the restored gospel of Jesus Christ. The lessons are designed to help you prepare spiritually by learning the doctrine for yourself and then plan ways to engage the youth in power learning experiences. You can find additional resources and teaching ideas for each of these at lds.org/youth/learn.

Gospel Learning and Teaching

Learning and Teaching Ideas

The Savior used the scriptures to teach and testify about His mission. He taught people to ponder the scriptures and use them to help answer questions. He helped them discover gospel lessons in their own experiences and in the world around them by using examples that they could relate to. He invited them to become witnesses of His teachings by teaching and testifying to others and in this way deepen their understanding of the doctrine.

Part of your responsibility as a teacher of youth is to prepare learning activities that follow these principles exemplified by the Savior. Click the links on the left to see ideas that you can use to help the youth search the words of the prophets, see examples of the principles you are teaching, and share the gospel with others. You can adapt these ideas to any lesson topic.

As you plan activities, remember that one of your main objectives in teaching youth is to encourage them to share what they learn. As youth express gospel truths, these truths are confirmed in their hearts and minds by the power of the Holy Ghost. Sharing the gospel with others also allows the youth to strengthen one another—hearing a gospel truth from a peer is sometimes more powerful than hearing it from a leader or teacher.

Your Purpose

The First Presidency has taught that your purpose as a teacher of youth is to help them become converted to the gospel of Jesus Christ.

The path to conversion is a personal one. Conversion does not happen in a meeting, class, or activity alone. Ultimately, youth are converted by diligently living the gospel each day—praying, studying the scriptures, keeping the commandments, fulfilling priesthood and other duties, attending the temple, serving their families and others, and sharing the gospel. As they do these things, their desires, attitudes, and actions begin to align with Heavenly Father's will. They become happy and confident, and they delight "to act … and not to be acted upon" (2 Nephi 2:26). They strive to obey the promptings of the Holy Ghost, resist temptation, and "do many [good] things of their own free will" (D&C 58:27). They become "saint[s] through the atonement of Christ" (Mosiah 3:19).

All of us are converted as we learn to walk the gospel path for ourselves. In your role, the way you befriend, encourage, and support youth in their personal spiritual devotion, and the way you teach and learn with them in both formal and informal settings, will help them stay on the path and progress toward personal, lifelong conversion.

Introduction to Come, Follow Me

As you prepare to use Come, Follow Me to teach the youth, ponder the following questions and resources.

How did the Savior teach?

Can you see the Savior in your mind—with His disciples gathered around Him?	What do you notice about His way of teaching and leading?	How did He help others learn, grow spiritually, and become converted to His gospel?

Putting youth needs first

Watch the video "Determine What to Teach," or read Teaching the Gospel in the Savior's Way, 8.

QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER
How will preparing in this way affect the way youth feel about their classes?	How can you work with parents and other teachers to understand what the youth need?	What are the needs of the youth you teach? How can Sunday classes help?

Each month all teachers will focus on the same doctrine, but teachers will choose their own lesson topics for each week. You may choose to spend more than one week on a topic. Let the needs of the youth, not a predetermined schedule, guide your teaching.

Discovering together

Watch the video "Help Us Discover the Gospel," or read "Learning Outlines" in Teaching the Gospel in the Savior's Way, 9.

QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER
Why is it important for the youth to discover the truths of the gospel for themselves?	What can you do to prepare to teach in this way?

Review a learning outline from Come, Follow Me. What do you notice about the way the outline is organized, the kinds of resources it uses, and the nature of the learning activities?

Learning outlines are not meant to prescribe what you say and do as you teach. They are designed to help you learn the doctrine for yourself and prepare to engage the youth in learning, teaching, discovering, and sharing the gospel.

Leading to conversion

Read "Your Purpose" in Teaching the Gospel in the Savior's Way, 3. Watch the video "Teaching the Gospel in the Savior's Way," or read pages 4–5 in Teaching the Gospel in the Savior's Way.

QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER
How can you help the youth you teach become converted?	What can you do to follow the Savior's example?

Dear Primary Presidencies and Music Leaders,

This year we will have the sacred blessing and opportunity to help each child in Primary come to know that he or she is a child of God. We hope that the children will learn this important truth as they feel our Heavenly Father's love for them. As you prayerfully teach the doctrines in these sharing time lessons, you can help the children understand their divine identity, purpose, and potential. You can help them increase their faith in Jesus Christ and their testimony of our Heavenly Father's plan for them. And you can give them hope for their future and strengthen their desire to stay on the path back to our Heavenly Father.

Seek the help of the Spirit as you prepare, teach, and testify of these truths. Families will be blessed by your devoted efforts. We love you and extend our gratitude for the dedicated service you are giving to fortify and protect our precious children.

The Primary General Presidency

Guidelines for the Sacrament Meeting Presentation

Under the direction of the bishop or branch president, the children's sacrament meeting presentation is normally given during the fourth quarter of the year. Meet with the counselor in the bishopric or branch presidency who oversees Primary early in the year to discuss preliminary plans. Obtain his approval when the plans are completed.

Plan for the children to present the program based on the monthly sharing time themes. Throughout the year, keep notes of children's talks and personal experiences for possible use in the presentation. As you plan for the children to share what they have learned about this year's theme, think of ways they can help the congregation focus on the gospel doctrines they are teaching. A member of the bishopric may conclude the meeting with brief remarks.

Gospel Instruction

Use this booklet as you prepare to teach a 15-minute lesson each week during sharing time. You may supplement the weekly lessons with other Church-approved materials, such as the Friend or the Liahona.

The following guidelines will help you plan and present lessons.

Love Those You Teach. Show your love for the children by learning their names and being aware of their interests, talents, and needs.

Teach the Doctrine by the Spirit. As you prepare lessons, pray for guidance and strive to strengthen your testimony of the principles you will teach. This will help you teach by the Spirit.

Each week, plan ways to (1) identify the doctrine, (2) help the children understand it, and (3) help them apply it in their lives.

Invite Learning. This booklet is designed to help you know not only what to teach but also how to teach and invite learning. You will teach the doctrine more effectively as you do the following three things in every lesson:

Identify the doctrine. Clearly introduce the doctrine that the children will be learning. Consider ways to do this verbally and visually. (For some examples, see the lessons for the fourth week in February and the third week in July.)

Encourage understanding. Ensure that the children gain a deeper understanding of the doctrine through a variety of teaching methods that engage them in learning, such as singing songs, role-playing, and reading scriptures.

Encourage application. Give the children opportunities to apply the doctrine in their lives. Consider how they can express feelings about or set a goal related to the doctrine.

Orienting New Teachers: A Responsibility of Priesthood and Auxiliary Leaders

Teaching in the Savior's Way, 2015

If you are a priesthood or auxiliary leader, you have the responsibility to "meet individually with newly called teachers in [your] organizations, preferably before each teacher's first lesson" (Handbook 2: Administering the Church [2010], 5.5.3). These meetings are an opportunity to introduce new teachers to their sacred callings and inspire them with a vision of what it means to teach in the Savior's way. As a leader, you can help new teachers prepare to serve by doing the following things:

Discuss What It Means to Teach in the Savior's Way

To help the new teacher understand how the Savior taught and what that means for teachers, briefly discuss the following principles with the new teacher:

Love those you teach. Help the new teacher focus on the needs of the people he or she is teaching. Invite the new teacher to look for their strengths and unique needs. If necessary, provide a list of class members. Remind the new teacher that he or she is responsible to help those learners who do not attend class regularly. Encourage the teacher to prayerfully seek ways to reach out to these people.

Teach by the Spirit. Discuss the importance of preparing spiritually to teach. Because the promptings of the Holy Ghost come line upon line, encourage the new teacher to begin preparing to teach at least one week in advance and to seek inspiration throughout the week.

Teach the doctrine. Bear your testimony of the power of the word of God to change hearts. Invite the new teacher to study the scriptures and the words of living prophets on the assigned teaching topics before referring to any supplemental material. Encourage the teacher to record the spiritual impressions that he or she receives while studying and to focus on principles and resources that build faith and encourage Christlike living.

Invite diligent learning. Help the new teacher understand that teaching means more than just making a presentation; it means encouraging people to become responsible for their own gospel learning and to edify one another as gospel learners (see D&C 88:122).

Discuss Your Specific Organization

In addition to discussing general principles of Christlike teaching, you might take some time to share with the new teacher anything about your organization that would be helpful. Are there any needs you have discussed as a presidency that you would like your teachers to be aware of? For example, if an elders quorum presidency has felt inspired to emphasize quorum unity, how could the quorum instructors support that goal? If the bishop has asked the ward council to improve reverence in the ward, how could Primary teachers help?

As needed, tell the new teacher which room to teach in and what lesson to begin with, and provide any information the teacher needs about the class and class members.

Offer Ongoing Support

Explain that you can help the new teacher with his or her calling in any way and provide support in the classroom if needed. You could even offer to observe the new teacher's class occasionally and provide feedback. Give the teacher a copy of this resource and explain when the monthly teacher council meetings are held. Explain the purposes of these meetings and the expectation that the new teacher participate.

Encourage the new teacher to visit the My Calling section of LDS.org and the Gospel Library app for more about how to grow as a teacher.

> "Even the newest member of the Church can sense that a call to service should be primarily a matter of the heart. It is by giving our whole hearts to the Master and keeping His commandments that we come to know Him. … What [those who are called to serve] will need, even more than to be trained in their duties, is to see with spiritual eyes what it means to be called to serve in the restored Church of Jesus Christ" (Henry B. Eyring, "Rise to Your Call," Ensign or Liahona, Nov. 2002, 75).

Teacher Council Meetings

Teaching in the Savior's Way, 2015

Each ward should hold monthly teacher council meetings in which teachers can counsel together about principles of Christlike teaching.

When should these meetings be held? Teacher council meetings should normally take place during the three-hour schedule of Sunday meetings.

- Sunday School teachers meet during priesthood quorum, Relief Society, and Young Women meetings.
- Priesthood quorum, Relief Society, and Young Women teachers meet during Sunday School.
- Primary teachers attend either of the meetings described above, as directed by the Primary president. (Note: As needed, the Primary presidency assigns substitute teachers, combines classes, or makes other arrangements to allow Primary teachers to attend teacher council meetings.)

Who should attend?

Everyone who teaches a quorum or class in the ward should attend, along with at least one of the priesthood or auxiliary leaders responsible for those teachers. If necessary, participants may be divided into groups according to the needs of those they teach. For example, teachers of youth or children may benefit from meeting separately on occasion to discuss issues specifically related to teaching youth or children.

Who leads these meetings?

The ward council, with assistance from the Sunday School presidency, oversees teacher council meetings. In most cases, a member of the Sunday School presidency acts as discussion leader for the meetings; other ward members may be assigned to lead meetings on occasion.

What should happen in a teacher council meeting?

(Note: These instructions are for discussion leaders.) After an opening prayer, the teacher council meeting should follow this format:

- Share and counsel together. Invite teachers to share recent teaching experiences, ask questions related to teaching, and share ideas for overcoming challenges. This part of the meeting could include a review of principles discussed in previous meetings.
- Learn together. Invite teachers to discuss one of the principles presented in this resource. The principles may be addressed in any order, and unless otherwise directed by the ward council, the participants in the meeting may choose the next principle to be discussed. It is not necessary to cover every aspect of the principle in one teacher council meeting—you can spend more than one meeting on a principle if needed.
- Practice and invite. As appropriate, help teachers practice the principle they have discussed. Invite them to record and act upon any impressions they receive about how to apply the principle in their teaching—including in their efforts to teach in their homes. Encourage them to begin studying the next principle to be discussed.

Asmuch as possible, teacher council meetings should model the principles being discussed.

Using Media for Lessons

"Teachers who desire to increase learners' ability to understand and learn will also use visuals. Most people will learn better and remember longer when you present ideas by using pictures, maps, word groupings, or other visuals rather than merely speaking" (Teaching, No Greater Call: A Resource Guide for Gospel Teaching [1999], 182).

The LDS Media Library offers many resources to enhance gospel lessons. To more effectively use media in your lessons, consider the following suggestions:

Learn

- View scriptural presentation videos to learn how prophets and apostles "liken" the scriptures to our day.
- Deepen your understanding of your lesson topic by studying and listening to messages from general conference.
- Study images with the scriptures to draw parallels between the modern Church and the one in ancient times.

Share

- Incorporate media from the Youth Curriculum video category in Sunday School lessons taught to youth.
- Share a video or audio clip in a home or visiting teaching lesson.
- Use a clip from a Book of Mormon story to demonstrate a lesson concept.

Create

- Create an activity using images to help students learn more about ancient prophets.
- Use images from the Church manuals to enrich priesthood and Relief Society lessons.
- Make a tutorial of how to use media to enhance lessons and inspire members in your ward.

Additional ideas on using media for lessons can be found in the following resources:

"Methods of Teaching," Part F: Methods of Teaching, Teaching, No Greater Call: A Resource Guide for Gospel Teaching (1999), 158–84.
Teaching, No Greater Call: A Resource Guide for Gospel Teaching (1999).
